

The Palais Royal's Anniversary.

Enduring success is only possible when earned by force of merit. The "Survival of the Fittest" is but the sequel to the "Failure of the Unfit." The Palais Royal's 26th anniversary and The Evening Star's anniversary are illustrations of a rule that knows no exception. Both The Star and the Palais Royal now hold impregnable positions, built on the foundation stone of merit, the component parts of which are ability and honesty of purpose. If mistakes have been made the people knew that "they meant well." Growing wiser as we grow older, errors are fewer and fewer; success follows success, until the goal of our ambition, a perfect newspaper and a perfect store, seem as near possible as anything impossible can be. Have not The Evening Star and the Palais Royal cause for mutual congratulation?

A Catalogue of Two Million Christmas Presents.

The Palais Royal has been so conclusively demonstrated Headquarters for Christmas present suggestions that little cause remains for advertising, unless it is to induce visitors here during the less busy morning hours and help them in every way to make Christmas Present hunting a pleasure rather than a task. With this object in view, the special morning inducements have been made, with gratuitous service in the way of engraving initials, stamping name, suitably boxing and laying aside selec-

Would it not be advisable to cut out and preserve the catalogue below? Does it not suggest Christmas Presents for all kinds for everybody? Will it not save a world of thought and worry?

tions made for Christmas giving. The room for checking wraps, the resting room, and the lunch room are also features. Perhaps the most helpful of all is the Palais Royal's catalogue of 2,000,000 Christmas presents, published below. Prices gradually rise from the least to the most expensive, and embrace a gathering that has been again and again pronounced the most comprehensive ever seen here.
